

STRATEGY SESSION ON THE ROLE OF PARLIAMENTARIANS IN PROMOTING NON-DISCRIMINATION BASED ON SEXUAL ORIENTATION & GENDER IDENTITY

Hotel Hilton Princess, Liverpool conference room,
San Salvador, El Salvador

Sunday, November 29th, 2015
9:00 a.m. – 2:00 p.m.

Agenda

Objectives and structure of the session:

Section 1: To share best practices and effective strategies among Parliamentarians, human rights practitioners and NGO representatives from different regions of the world in promoting non-discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity (SOGI). Parliamentarians and civil society representatives from the same country/region will offer their perspectives on opportunities and challenges to promoting non-discrimination, followed by an informal, facilitated discussion. Participants will be asked to keep comments to 2-3 minutes to allow a broader interactive dialogue.

Section 2: To review, discuss and provide input to a draft version of a user-friendly, Parliamentary Handbook on Human Rights and SOGI prepared jointly by PGA and the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) and to be published in mid-2016. The moderator of this section will project on the screen the main elements of the handbook and request feedback from participants. An electronic version of the draft handbook will be shared with participants in advance of the meeting.

Expected participants: Parliamentarians from Latin America and the Caribbean (LAC), Africa, and Asia, NGO Representatives from the LAC region, and human rights experts.

About PGA's SOGI Campaign:

In 2013, PGA launched its SOGI Campaign to promote the human rights principles of equality and non-discrimination and to sensitize parliamentarians on the obligations that States have to all individuals regardless of sexual orientation and gender identity and expression under regional and international conventions to which their countries are party.

Through actions and consultations on sexual orientation and gender identity, PGA has engaged more than 100 parliamentarians from the following countries: Belize, Costa Rica, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Ghana, Guatemala, Honduras, Jamaica, Kenya, Liberia, Peru, Sierra Leone, Sri Lanka, Suriname, Tanzania, Trinidad & Tobago, Uganda, Uruguay and Zimbabwe.

Acknowledgments:

The Parliamentary Handbook on Human Rights Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity is a joint initiative of the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) and Parliamentarians for Global Action (PGA).

PGA would like to acknowledge the support of Hivos, the Global Equality Fund, the Arcus Foundation and the Open Society Foundations to PGA's SOGI Campaign and this activity.

PGA would also like to thank UNDP for facilitating the participation of LGBTI civil society representatives in this consultation.
